A Zeal to Excel

When Chloe moved to Singapore from Switzerland at the age of 7, she knew very little English. She was also diagnosed with dyslexia. Naturally, Chloe struggled academically, and not everyone understood the challenges she faced. But she diverted her attention to sports, which she excelled in. Winning made her feel good and built up her self-confidence. She also discovered an interest in current affairs, which her mother would discuss with her. Spurred by a growing sense of self-belief and a thirst for knowledge, Chloe learned to look beyond and chart her own path to success.

At ITE, Chloe thrived. Besides excelling in her studies, she also actively seized opportunities to better herself and make a positive difference. As the Vice President of the Student Council and President of the School of Business and Services Club, she showed her strong leadership abilities by leading various community service projects and school events. Her personal experiences have convicted her to create more awareness on the challenges faced by students of special needs, a cause she aspires to champion in the long run.

Advocate of Motivation

“Whatever I do in life, I give my best. If there is something I don’t know, I’d just ask to find out more. I believe that is the key to learning and success. We all have our potential. And just like how my teachers at ITE have given me many opportunities to realise my full potential, I want to mentor and help others to find theirs.”

After ITE

Chloe is still in ITE pursuing the Higher Nitec in Human Resource & Administration course at ITE College Central.
